

"Blackie" is Dead

"Blackie" a descendant from a long line of aristocrats of the Chihuahua (Mexico) breed of dogs, has passed beyond. Blackie had resided in the E.H. Hollister home for fourteen years and that is a remarkably long time for one of her kind to live.

When Blackie first came she could be placed in a large cup. and could easily be carried in an overcoat pocket she was so small. Though tiny in size she always felt important, and her small size attracted much interest when she accompanied her owners on trips through the country.

Blackie now rests on the hill amid the dust of Chief Big Foot's wives and faithful dogs. Another Blackie, just a few weeks old, has come to fill her place.

Reprinted from Bay Leaves, Vol. 5 No.1 (January 7, 1937), Frank M. Van Epps. editor.